Minos Systems UK is an organisation focused on solutions dedicated to providing answers to real issues: carbon reduction, lowering local authority energy bills and bringing new technology to everyone in the UK. We offer exciting, country-wide services using the existing streetlight infrastructure.

Our portfolio of products are borne out of a partnership between UMPI, a respected and experienced Italian communications organisation and our team of electrical engineering experts who also understand the commercial benefits our products provide. Together, Umpi and Minos Systems UK provide a complete design, development, manufacture and support package.

Our solutions excite our clients at every level. The decision makers are attracted to the huge savings in energy and the high-profile environmental benefits. Engineers are drawn to the exciting technology and its flexibility in working with old and new streetlight ballasts. Financial minds are interested by potential revenue streams and lower energy bills.

Minos Systems UK is working hard to bring about a whole world of change - combining exciting innovation with the UK's existing infrastructure.
